LET US SEE WHAT IT AMOUNTS TO.

The Rev. Dr. Hale was said to represent this class of persons to a charm. He once went to the post office for his letters; the Postmaster asked him his name. After a few moments hesitation he said, "truly, I have forgot" On his way home to ask his wife, he met a friend who extended his hand, saying. "Good morning Dr. Itale." "Ah! yes, that's it," said he, and retraced his steps for his letters

You may see many in Honelulu equally forgetful. For instance, see that man on the street trying to smoke his cigar. Puff. puff. but its no go; it has lost its heat. Cast your eye around and observe that other gentleman—chest thrown forward, head back, hat on three hairs, and his every movement indicates a feeling of sureciprity. His forgetful friend ment indicates a feeling of superiority. His forgetful friend says, "Where did you get that cigar?"

"Where else but at MARCHANT'S!" "I have just passed, but forgot to get some," and he immediately retraces his steps to Marchant's, where is to be found the Choicest Cigars, Pure Spanish, Best Brands, New York Club House, and the other fancy Brands of California. An entire new lot of Manillas kept in the finest Ten. To-Meerschaum, Wood and Clay. Cigar and Cigarette Holders. Cutlery at half price.

Ber A physician of this city was called on last Monday evening to render assistance to a man who had been stabbed. Instead of answering to this appeal for aid to assist a probably dying man, he declined to render any services. This fact coming to the ears of those in authority he was arrested, and would undoubtedly have been fined but for the evidence disclosing that his license was not legal, and not in accordance with the present laws of this Kingdom.

By the last mail from the East, an autograph letter was received by His Majesty the King from Her Majesty the Empress of Germany, acknowledging the receipt of the beautiful necklace of Kukui nuts of which we made mention at the time it was sent, on the occasion of the golden wedding. We had the pleasure of examining the which they were so unceremoniously and quickly dispatched. inst., as he leaped from his watery bed and shone forth with light, looked down upon the hamlets of this local within the walls of which were ensconsed in sweet slum ber the forms of many other sons whose beaming and shining countenances would form the foreground in a tableaux, the finale of the picnic at Pauca Valley. The usual hour for the dispensations to be issued having arrived, the demurrers at the former proceedings having again arranged themselves in line, and eight new appli-cants, whose claims required notice, having been joined Peter's separated the pair for that evening, one being con- to the host, His Honor commenced the introductory exercises by recounting the deeds that had brought them to his notice. All heard in respectful silence the story of what had occurred after the camp followers of the knightly host had crossed the Jordan, and only two (a poor man and a richer son of another) raised their voice in objection to having their names enrolled among those whose honorable (7) deeds and dignified language during the progress of the games had brought them notoriety, His Honor heard with bowed head the objections, and after communing with his advisers concluded to allow these two compatriots to depart devoid of even a passing notice. Others too departed, but their exit was more dignified, and besides they did not forget to tender to the Deputy Marshal various tokens of their esteem and regard. As these last were disappearing from view re-marks were passed by jealous brothers, of a more sable hue, the gist of which, translated from the Syriac Into English, was " If that air white trash hastn't a comed we yere Knights wud had more glory." This latter language broke the spell that seemed to bind his Honor, and he with most majestic and awe inspiring air and manner spoke: "Remnant of a knightly host," said he, "your deeds have proven naught when thus your silly tongues run loose. Ye called them trash, and do ye well to call them trash who have for years been known as pleasant gentlemen? Have not their deeds shown but too true they well deserve the name? Poor fools, your deeds might well have brought you like distinction hadet ye been gifted with the gifts which nature has launched on them. But no, your ignorance is yet your bliss, anon the road to fame may ope to you, but now no glory waite you; go from my presence and when you come again bring better proofs your deeds are worth reward." And so he ended, and stepping from the dias, disappeared. The others too retired and soon a solemn stillness bung around the ancient hall, and as the radiant sun showe in a broken window pane the light showed no more sons, but glistened on the silver, heaped on heap, the offerings of the noble few whose deeds had brought them thes.
